Tissue 2017 is a new conference that brings together TAPPI technical content with RISI expertise in market trends, grade expectations and competitive data for the North American Tissue market.

Why Present at Tissue 2017?

At the inaugural Tissue 2017, you will be part the first ever combined RISI and TAPPI meeting covering all aspects of the industry. Anticipated attendees include senior executives and mill operations management; financial analysts and investors, as well as leading machine, chemical and process suppliers. The peer-reviewed TAPPI program will address technical advancements in a non-commercial manner, while RISI economists and industry analysts will share insights about economic and market trends affecting tissue. This will combine to provide a unique experience encompassing manufacturing innovations and strategic market insights all at one event.
